Randy was raised in Nashville, Tennessee and began flying with the Army Reserve Officers Training Corps while attending Vanderbilt University. After graduation he served 20 years in the Army. During that time he flew both rotary-wing and fixed wing aircraft, to include, AH-1 Cobra, C-12 Huron, OH-58 Kiowa, U-21 Ute, and UH-1 Huey. While in the Army he earned Master degrees in Systems Management from the University of Southern California and Aeronautical Science from Embry Riddle Aeronautical University. Following his retirement from the Army he became active with the Civil Air Patrol, flying Cessna 172s and 182. Randy retired from the Army at Fort Bliss, Texas and followed his wife to Colorado Springs where she was assigned to Fort Carson. He joined Nakata Planning Group as a military planner and analyst. The company was purchased by HDR where he continues to work as a Project and Program Manager. He has earned accreditations as an American Institute of Certified Planner and Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design as a Green Associate. Randy lives in southern Colorado Springs with his wife, Linda and daughter, Sara.
